

English Language Teachers' Association Ulm / Neu-Ulm e.V.

OXFORD
UNIVERSITY PRESS

19.06.2020 – TWO-PART WEBINAR
SUPPORTING TEACHERS, STUDENTS AND INSTITUTIONS IN A REMOTE TEACHING
ENVIRONMENT //
GLOBAL SKILLS IN ACTION

Speakers: Elisabeth Winterwerb-Cossons and Michelle Jagger, with a greeting from Peter Newsholme, OUP ELT Area Manager.

Workshop in co-operation with Oxford University Press

15:30 – 15:45 Greeting - Peter Newsholme

15:45 – 16:45 Supporting teachers, students and institutions in a remote learning environment

Given the current situation, we have all faced challenges and had to adjust to new ways of working and communicating with our students and colleagues. However, this has also been a time to benefit from new teaching opportunities, ideas and impulses within the remote learning environment. It is these essential skills, acquired now, which will stand us in good stead for the future. From apps to online resources, from eBooks to online practice; OUP has a wide range of innovative resources for all age groups, learning sectors and abilities. Join Lis, ELT consultant for Central/Western Germany, in this informative session to find out what OUP can offer you in terms of digital support and where you can find it. For attendees we are offering free CPT/eBook access codes to the coursebook of your choice, more details during the workshop.

WHEN?

FRIDAY

19.06.2020

15:30-18:00

(APPROX.)

WHERE?

ONLINE USING ZOOM.

REGISTRATION

DEADLINE?

18.06.2020

WHERE TO REGISTER?

events@eltau.de

(include

'Registration Global Skills' in the subject line)

ELTAU e.V.

English Language Teachers'
Association Ulm/ Neu Ulm, C/O
Gabrielle Jones,
Eichendorffstraße 20, 89335
Ichenhausen
ELTAU e.V. Volksbank Ulm-
Biberach IBAN DE74 6309 0100
0133 9610 01 BIC ULMVDE66

Website: www.eltau.de

16:45 – 17:00 BREAK for a chat and a stretch

17:00 – 18:00 Global Skills in Action

In this webinar, Michelle, ELT consultant for Southern Germany/Austria, will give you a short introduction to Global Skills and we will brainstorm practical ideas on how to create a Global Skills learning environment in the ELT classroom. Regardless of student ages or whether you are teaching business, academic or general English, all students can benefit from practising Global Skills in the classroom, then transferring them to their work or study. Ideas will also be taken from OUP's position paper, Global Skills: Creating Empowered 21st Century Citizens: www.oxelt.gl/global-skills

Biodata:

Peter Newsholme

Pete is the Oxford University Press ELT Area Manager for Germany and Austria and has lived and worked in Germany for the last 17 years. Before starting his career with OUP in 2011, he worked in Sales and Marketing roles, as a trainer, teacher trainer and Director of Studies.

Elisabeth Winterwerb-Cossons

Elisabeth has been the ELT Consultant for Oxford University Press for West and Central Germany since June 2018. Prior to that, she spent twelve years as an English Language Trainer working with international companies and adult educational institutions across the Rhine-Main region. With a BSc in Geography, she has a background in Environmental Education and worked for conservation organisations in Mauritius, Madagascar, South Africa, Switzerland and the UK, before settling in Germany.

Michelle Jagger

Michelle joined Oxford University Press in April 2019, where she is the ELT Consultant for Southern Germany and Austria. With a background in Marketing and Sales, Michelle moved to Germany from the UK in 1992 to work for a global IT company. In 1999, she changed to a career in language training and worked for over 20 years as a freelance trainer, teaching primarily in-company business English, but also tutoring younger learners. A former member of the ELTAS committee, she understands the valuable networking platform the ELTAs provide.

There is no attendance fee for this workshop, but we do ask you to register with us by email (events@eltau.de) including 'Registration Global Skills' in the subject line by 18th June to reserve a place (confirmation with log-in details by email reply).

You are welcome to join one or both halves of the event.